Westmorland Gazette - Death

18th November 1826

"On Monday last, at Mirehead, in Grayrigg, John Farrer, aged 44, one of the Society of Friends. He was an active and spirited man – a cheerful and benevolent neighbour – a man of candour, and could not be prejudiced by any views of interest. He was confined to his bed upwards of eight months, which he bore with becoming patience and resignation."

¶ The Author passed from us on Sunday, the 17th August, 1924, at Forsjord, Mosjoen, Norway. William Farrer (1861-1924), historian and genealogist, was born at Little Marsden near Burnley, Lancashire, on 28 February 1861. He was the second son of William Farrer Ecroyd (1827-1915), Tory politician and worsted manufacturer; he changed his surname to Farrer in 1896 in compliance with the will of a great-uncle. After leaving Rugby School he briefly entered the family business before settling down to a country life. He lived in Yorkshire at Merton near Skipton, then at Thornburgh House, Leyburn, later at Hall Garth, Over Kellet, Lancashire, and finally at Whitbarrow Lodge, Witherslack, Westmorland. see DNB
